Headmaster's Message

Dear Parents and Guardians,

During our first full week back at school, I have been delighted to show four prospective families around St Edmund's Prep.

On one of the tours, the mother and I chatted to the children about their interests outside school. When I asked, "What do you like to do when you get home?" hands shot up in every class. As we left one room, she smiled and said, "That's interesting – not many hands went up for gaming." She meant online gaming, of course.

Since then, I have been asking pupils about their favourite board games at home – and every single child has had an answer ready. To me it is evident how active you are with your children at home and I thank you for this.

Life can feel so busy and pressurised. It is easy – and I include myself in this – to focus on what needs doing rather than what truly matters. Is it more important that the hallway is hoovered and every lightbulb works, or that we spend unhurried time with the children we cherish?

Board games offer so much: negotiation, turn-taking, listening, sharing, reading, resolving disagreements and, occasionally, learning how to lose gracefully (we don't seem to be too good at that in our house thus far). So as the weather turns colder, perhaps we can put the Hoover and the screwdriver to one side, gather round a table and make some memories.

I wish you a very good weekend.

Mr Steven Cartwright
Headmaster, St Edmund's Prep School

Form 3&4 Potion Workshop

Young chemists in Form 3 and 4 turned detectives in our recent Potions Workshop in the College Laboratories, where curiosity (and a little mystery) filled the room. Participants experimented with chemical reactions—mixing, fizzing, changing colours—to uncover clues about an unmarked solution. By observing reactions and comparing results, they pieced together the evidence to identify what it could be! Thank you very much to Miss Towns and Miss Parks for leading such a brilliant workshop for us!

Computing Conundrum

Form 3 have been having lots of fun learning about micro:bits in Computing. They discovered how the micro:bit works, how to connect it to a computer, and how to send their code to the device. The children used problem-solving skills to fix mistakes in their code and test different ideas. They enjoyed creating pictures on the LED display and programming the micro:bit to show different faces.

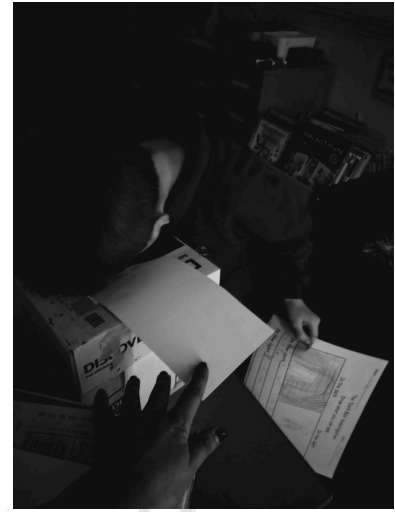

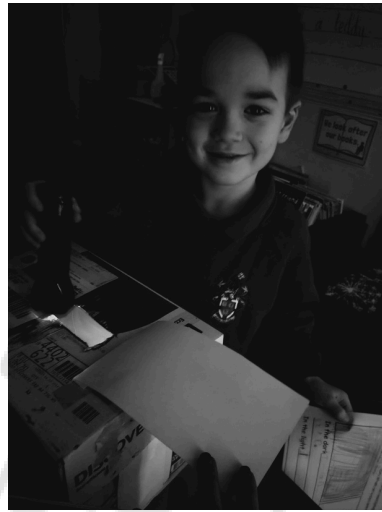

This Week In The Prep

Form 1 Super Scientists

🌟 Form 1 Super Scientists have begun their Light and Dark topic! This week they tested whether objects can be seen in complete darkness. Inside the dark boxes... nothing! But with a little light, everything appeared. The torches were definitely their favourite part 🧲🌟

Form 5 Gravity

Form 5 have been studying gravity. They carried out an investigation comparing weight and mass using Newton meters and scales. Lots of discussion, practical work and fun had by all.

Performing Arts

Form 6 ~Dona Nobis Pacem

Dona nobis pacem is Latin for "Grant us peace," a phrase from the Agnus Dei (Lamb of God) in the Catholic Mass. As well as being sung in churches, it has also been adopted for use as a song with a broader message about peace. The melody has been passed down orally and is thought to be traditional, often attributed to Mozart and in the major works of Ralph Vaughan Williams's cantata.

Form 6 are learning to sing this short prayer for peace in a round of three parts and already they sound amazing.
